USPA NEWS - The Keukenhof Gardens: A Wonderland of Flowers in the Netherlands

The Netherlands is famous for many things, but one of its most beautiful and unique attractions is the Keukenhof Gardens. Located in the small town of Lisse, just a short drive from Amsterdam, the Keukenhof Gardens are a true wonderland of flowers. With over seven million bulbs planted each year, the gardens are a feast for the senses, and a must-see for anyone visiting the Netherlands.

History of the Keukenhof Gardens

The Keukenhof Gardens were first established in 1949 by the then-mayor of Lisse, who wanted to create a park to showcase the country's flower industry. The gardens quickly became popular with locals and tourists alike, and today they are one of the most visited attractions in the Netherlands.

The name Keukenhof translates to "kitchen garden" in English, and the park's original purpose was to grow herbs and vegetables for the nearby castle. However, over time the park became known for its stunning displays of tulips and other flowers, and today it is considered one of the most important flower exhibitions in the world.

What to Expect at the Keukenhof Gardens

The Keukenhof Gardens are open annually from late March to mid-May, and during this time visitors can expect to see an incredible array of flowers. The gardens are particularly famous for their tulips, which come in a rainbow of colors and are arranged in beautiful patterns and displays throughout the park.
In addition to tulips, the Keukenhof Gardens also feature a wide variety of other flowers, including daffodils, hyacinths, orchids, roses, and more. The park is divided into several different themed sections, each with its own unique displays and designs.

One of the most popular areas of the park is the Oranje Nassau Pavilion, which showcases a different theme each year. The pavilion is home to hundreds of tulips, as well as other flowers, and is a must-see for anyone visiting the gardens.

Another highlight of the Keukenhof Gardens is the Beatrix Pavilion, which houses a stunning collection of orchids. Visitors can wander through the pavilion and admire the delicate blooms, which come in a wide range of colors and shapes.

In addition to the flowers, the Keukenhof Gardens also offer a variety of other activities and attractions. Visitors can take a boat tour of the park's many waterways, enjoy live music and entertainment, or simply relax and take in the beauty of the surroundings.

Tips for Visiting the Keukenhof Gardens

If you're planning a visit to the Keukenhof Gardens, there are a few things you should keep in mind. First, the gardens can get quite crowded, particularly on weekends and during peak season. To avoid the crowds, it's best to visit early in the day or later in the afternoon.

Second, be sure to dress for the weather. The Netherlands can be quite chilly in the spring, so it's a good idea to wear layers and bring a raincoat or umbrella just in case.

Finally, be prepared to do a lot of walking. The Keukenhof Gardens are quite large, and there is a lot to see and explore. Wear comfortable shoes and be prepared for some exercise.

Getting to the Keukenhof Gardens

The Keukenhof Gardens are located in the town of Lisse, which is about a 45-minute drive from Amsterdam. Visitors can also reach the gardens by public transportation, including buses and trains.

If you're driving to the Keukenhof Gardens, be sure to plan ahead for parking. The gardens have several large parking areas, but they can fill up quickly during peak season.

Have fun
